

- Cities
- Business Directory
- Book of Lists
- Upstart Business Journal
- Bizwomen
- Contact Us
- Sign In
- Like on Facebook
- Follow on Twitter
- Follow on LinkedIn
- Follow on Google+

Triad Business Journal

- Home
- News
- People
- Events
- Jobs
- Resources
- Store

Subscribe Now Limited Time Offer

Apr 18, 2014, 2:28pm EDT

Slideshow: Golf pros weigh in to create the Triad Business Journal's Ultimate 9 holes

Playing the 463-yard par 5 No. 14 at the Irving Park course, golfer hit their tee shot across the entrance to the club, says Jim Deaton, director of golf. "I love the setting of the green," he says. "The green looks like it's always been sitting there, and someone dug out a little face for the bunker and planted grass on top." Surrounded by hardwoods, the green can be reached in two, with a long to middle iron on the second shot following a good drive, he says.
Courtesy of Greensboro Country Club

- Link to photo <http://bizj.us/vfznh/i/7>

Photo galleries See all photo galleries

- Keith Crisco: Friends, colleagues reflect on the life of a 'true friend' to North Carolina

13 Photos

- Where socks were once sewn, finance jobs are the new thread

2 Photos

- Exclusive: Hampton Inn planned for downtown Greensboro

2 Photos

- The ACC has a new logo, but it's super secret — or was

2 Photos

- Three from Triad in regional finals for Ernst & Young Entrepreneur of the Year

3 Photos

- Papa John's president to replace Jim Morgan as Krispy Kreme CEO

2 Photos

- Home Meridian planning to move HQ to new building in High Point

3 Photos